Kevin Mitchell is an individual who prides himself on being friendly and trustworthy. He recognizes that being punctual, organized, hardworking and taking initiative are important work qualities. Over the years, Kevin has learned that putting these qualities into practice is essential to his personal and professional growth. This became evident during his previous rotation as a clerical assistant in the Georgia Southern College of Education (Armstrong Campus). Currently, Kevin is interning at St. Joseph’s Hospital Outpatient Rehabilitation Center where he is striving to put into practice these vital qualities. For his future endeavors, Kevin hopes to attend a college in New York to pursue a degree in food service management.

Kevin was referred to Project SEARCH by Valita Nichols, a transition specialist at Islands High School. He explains that Project SEARCH has taught him life skills, making him more independent and productive in his everyday life. These skills include operating and managing a bank account as well as riding public transportation. Kevin has also learned more about eating healthy, having a positive attitude, and has developed his interpersonal skills. He hopes to implement all that he has learned and experienced in his future endeavors.

Kevin is an avid admirer of drama, theatre and music. He speaks passionately about his experiences in high school where he participated in a music chorus group. When you meet Kevin, he is likely to strike-up a conversation with you and leave you feeling welcomed and in good spirits.
