Introducing Chancellor Tilicea

A 2018-2019 Project SEARCH intern

Meet Chancellor Tilicea. He considers himself to be an "old soul" who was born in the 90s. Known by the nickname "Chance," he identifies his strengths as being friendly, sociable and a good worker. Chance is currently working as an intern at St. Joseph's Hospital with the central supplies unit where he scans and receives supplies as well as stocks shelves. His personal goal is to one day live on his own. (Continued on page 2.)
Chance's Story

Chance believes that the program has helped him in many ways. Project SEARCH has taught him the skills to be able to ride public transportation, eat healthy and interact professionally with others. Chance said that he wants to add learning to drive to his list of accomplishments as well so that he can become more independent.

He loves the oldies like the Knight Rider series, James Bond, Airwolf, Magnum P.I., Baywatch and 80s music. Chance said that through Project SEARCH, he has learned to differentiate between friendships and acquaintances. Just like Chancelor Tilicea, Project SEARCH is presently helping other interns in his group with skills that they need to learn to succeed in the workforce.

"Great things never came from comfort zones."
